Note: If you have multiple connections, you must complete a separate declaration for each connection.

This declaration applies in the following situation:
1. The supply of electricity is exempt from energy tax when the electricity is used for generating electricity in an installation designed for that purpose.

See § 7.10.1 of the Environmental Taxes Handbook for further explanation.

The consumer requests the supplier, pursuant to Article 64, paragraph 1(c) of the Environmental Taxes Act, not to charge energy tax on the full electricity supply via the connection specified above.

Incorrect declaration

If the undersigned provides an incorrect declaration, or fails to withdraw the declaration when circumstances change, the supplier cannot be held responsible. If the Tax Authority discovers during an inspection that the exemption was wrongly applied based on this declaration, the Tax Authority may reclaim the unpaid energy tax directly from the consumer.

If the Tax Authority charges the supplier instead, the supplier may pass this amount (including any fines and interest) on to the consumer. It is therefore essential that the consumer immediately informs the supplier of any changes affecting the exemption, for example if the conditions for exemption are no longer met.

Effective date of the declaration

The requested exemption from energy tax can only be applied by Eneco Zakelijk B.V. starting from the month in which we receive the declaration.

If Eneco Zakelijk has not applied the exemption, the consumer may submit a refund request directly to the Tax Authority. See § 7.11.8 Handboek milieubelastingen for more information.

This declaration is a document of significant financial importance. It is recommended to make two copies of the completed declaration: one for your own records and one for other purposes if needed. The legal texts and official publications can be found at www.overheid.nl under Legislation and Official Publications. The Environmental Taxes Handbook can be downloaded via this official link.
